A FAITHFUL DOG'S DEATH

How He Saved the Lives of a Hotel's Guests.

And Then Lost His Own Life in the Frantic Race for Others Whom He Believed Remained in the Burning Building.

OLEAN, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The large Newfoundland dog, Heck, belonging to the St. Elmo Hotel, in the neighboring oil town of Eldred, Pennsylvania, was known throughout the Northern oil field for its great strength and almost human intelligence. The porter of the hotel, a kind-hearted but intemperate person, was an especial favorite with the dog. The porter, a small man, slept in a little room back of the office. The dog slept on the floor. On Sunday night, last, the porter was very drunk when he retired, and soon fell into a heavy sleep.

Some time in the night he was awakened by the loud barking of Heck, who was jumping frantically on the porter's bed, and seizing the pillow with his teeth. The still drunken and drowsy porter tried to make the dog go away, but the animal persisted in his efforts, and it finally dawned on the full-blown mind of the porter that the house was on fire. His room was full of smoke and he could hear the crackling of the flames. He sprang from bed but was still so drunk that he fell to the floor. The faithful dog at once seized him by the coat collar, the porter not having removed his clothing on going to bed, and dragged him out of the room and half way to the other door of the office when the man succeeded in getting to his feet, and, unloading the dog, staggered into the street.

The fire was rapidly spreading over the building and the hotel was filled with guests, not one of whom had been awakened. The dog now seemed to have a purpose, and he dashed back into the house and ran barking loudly up stairs. He first stopped at the door of his master's room, where he howled and scratched at the door until the inmates were made aware of the danger and hurried out of the house, as there was no time to lose. He then went to every door and in some instances conducted the guests down stairs to the outer door; each one of these, however, being strangers in the house, which fact dog seemed to understand in looking out for their safety.

The inmates of the house seemed to have lost their heads in the excitement, and it is said that the dog only preserved complete control of himself and alone took effective measures to save the inmates of the house. In and out of the burning building he kept continually dashing, piloting some half-dressed men and women down stairs, only to at once return in search of others.

Once a lady with a child in her arms tripped on the stairs while hurrying out and fell to the bottom. The child was thrown on the floor in the last few inches distance away. The woman regained her feet, and staggered in a dazed way out of the door, leaving the child in the hands of the smoke that was pouring from the office door. The brave dog saw the mishap, and, jumping in through the smoke, seized the child by its night clothing and carried it safely out.

Notwithstanding this rescue, the mishap that made it necessary led to the death of the noble animal. The child, on being rescued, was being restored by the fresh air, first became aware that her child was not with her, and crying out loudly that "Anna was burning up in the house," made a dash for the building as if to rush through the flames to seek her child. Heck had already brought the little one out, but it had not yet been restored to its mother. The dog saw the frantic rush of the mother toward the burning building and heard her exclaim that some one was burning up in the house, and although the building was now a mass of smoke and flames inside and out, the dog sprang forward and made a dash for the building, and, holding her back from her insane attempt to enter the house, disappeared with a bound over the burning threshold. The faithful animal never appeared again. His remains were found in the ruins.

There is no doubt in any one's mind that the intelligence and activity of Heck, the fire in the hotel would not have been discovered in time for a single inmate to have escaped from the building, and that the noble animal, undeterred from the half-rational movements of the child's mother that was still another one in danger and to rescue the child, gave his own life, as accepted as equally certain.

The remains of Heck were given a fitting burial, and his loss is regretted as that of a useful citizen might be.

A TRAGIC SUICIDE.

Strange Act of a Young Man in the Presence of His Sweetheart.

New York, Sept. 24.—Mary Miller, aged nineteen, petite and prepossessing, came to this country at the age of four years from Germany. At fourteen she went to work and was employed up to seven months ago as a domestic in a family living at the corner of Grove and Thirtieth streets, Jersey City.

Then she went to St. Louis, Mo., where she became a housemaid, and returned to New York, finding a home with a married sister, Mrs. Augusta Duntz, who lives at No. 120 Liberty street.

About four weeks ago, while going up town in a third Avenue car, a young German spoke to her, and after a short conversation asked her address and permission to call upon her. She consented to his request in both particulars, and thereafter he called at the house in Liberty street regularly.

She went to the theater with him two or three times and once or twice to picnics. He gave her the name of Charles Herman, and said he was employed as a lumber salesman at No. 328 East Twenty-fifth street. Herman called last evening at 7 o'clock and remained till 11. During his visit he seemed to be homesick, and asked Miss Miller, in the presence of her sister-in-law, if she loved him. She refused to answer, and when he went away she said she would call again Friday evening. Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning Herman came into the house and made some remarks in German to Miss Miller, which the married sister did not understand, and which the girl did not now remember. Herman then went out. In fifteen minutes he returned and asked the girl to go with him into the front room. He seemed greatly excited, and had probably been drinking. As soon as they had passed into the front room, he closed the door behind her and said:

"Mary, I have come to bid you good-by."

He then drew a pistol from his pocket. Miss Miller caught his arm, saying: "Shoot me—no—yourself."

As she spoke he fired, at the same time saying: "My poor mother and father," and the ball was guided by her sudden movement into the ceiling. Then she ran to her sister, and the man fired two shots from the revolver as he stood alone in front of the mirror.

The first shot passed through the ceiling and fell from right to left; the second passed through his head from one temple to the other. He fell bleeding and senseless to the floor. The neighbors were hastily called in, the police notified and an ambulance summoned. Herman was removed to the Chambers Street Hospital at a quarter to 9 o'clock, and at a quarter past 10 he died. After the shooting occurred Miss Miller shed a few tears, but talked over the tragedy as if it was no ordinary occurrence. She says that Herman never made love to her or expressed a desire to marry her. He was, however, of a jealous disposition, she said.

DIED ACCORDING TO LAW

Joseph Sarver, the Patricide, Executed at Indiana, Penn.

Atoning for a Most Fendish, Brutal Crime—The Father of the Hair-Working Murderer of a Young Farmer, Hanged.

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 24.—Joseph Sarver was hanged here this morning for a most brutal murder, committed a year ago. The gallows was erected in the small yard adjoining the jail.

Only the jury and reporters were admitted. Sarver ate a hearty supper last night, rested well and ate a hearty breakfast. He smoked a cigar and talked of everything except the execution, which was utterly unconcerned. A Catholic priest accompanied him to the scaffold. The drop fell at half past 10. The crime for which Joseph Sarver was hanged at Indiana, was the murder of his father on November 11, 1883. Near the village of West Lebanon, Indiana County, on Sunday Joseph and his father had been working on an adjoining farm, and on their way home they quarreled several times. Joe threatened to whip his father. On their arrival at home, the old man went into the barn, refusing to go into the house until he was assured by the housekeeper, Miss Kelly, that Joe would do him no harm.

In the meantime Joe had seen his revolver, and shortly after the old man came into the house Joe again began abusing him. During the war of words Joe turned down the light and afterward blew it out, and as he did so he fired his revolver, the ball going into the ceiling. The father, who was in the house, saying as he went that he would have Joe arrested. He was quickly followed by his wife and had him, and after Blaine finished when he was overtaken. Joe wanted his father to return to the house, which he refused to do, and started for the residence of Mrs. Foster. He was pursued by Joe, and just as he was entering the door of Mrs. Foster's house, Joe fired the ball penetrating his head, killing him almost instantly.

The murderer then returned to his father's house and fired at Miss Kelly, the ball passing through her left arm. She ran out of the house, pursued by Sarver, who shot her again, this time in the face. Miss Kelly fell to the ground, and was left in wretched condition. Sarver then began abusing him, and was arrested near the village of Jermers on the following day, when he was brought to Indiana and lodged in jail, where he made a full confession of the crime to a jailer, a prisoner a day or two later. He was convicted at the following March Court. The defense was made by a lawyer for a new trial was refused. An appeal for commutation of sentence to imprisonment for life was refused by the State Board of Prisoners, and the Governor commuted the sentence to life in the State, and refused to interfere.

MICHAEL MURRAY.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 24.—Michael Murray, a "Pegleg" Murray, the murderer of John Hancock, a prosperous young farmer, was hanged in the jail yard at 1 p. m. today. Murray was married, and had a family of five children. He was a quiet, unassuming man, and was sleeping in his barn. He was shot by his wife, Mary, who was a Catholic priest and two sisters of Mercy. To the priest he made his confession and partook of the sacrament. It was to have been a double execution, Michael Smith, the other murderer, escaping before his arrest. He was arrested and twenty-five persons witnessed the execution.

JERSEY APPLE-JACK

Will Be Abundant According to Report.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 24.—The apple crop in this State this year promises to be unusually large, for the trees in all the orchards in Morris, Sussex, Warren and Hunterdon Counties are loaded down with excellent fruit. A similar report comes from Monmouth and other counties in this State, and it is stated that although the farmers would rather have a smaller crop, so as to get better prices for their apples, the great yield of apples will give good return from sales to the proprietors of the cider mills and distilleries. The internal revenue law relating to fruit and other spirits went into force in 1881, and its effect has been to break up all the distilleries. The farmers now send their apples to the distiller, who is generally a farmer, and who lives in the country, and who grows distilleries. As the distilling season is only about four months, and as the apple crop is good only every second year and sometimes fails altogether, the farmer must have some other business to make both ends meet. The farmers either sell their apples for cash, take pay in the form of apple-jack, or else, as is generally the case, take so much cash and so much cider and apple-jack.

POOL TROUBLES.

Persistent Competition Promises a Total Disruption.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A special to the World from Cleveland says: Vice President Caldwell, of the National Billiard Association, who was in New York yesterday. It was learned that he went to attend a meeting of the members of the Chicago pool which will take place there at a meeting of the trunk-line Presidents.

From a private source it was learned that Mr. Fink had called the meeting, not to propose plans, but to tell the parties interested that he was powerless to longer control the railway problem and that they must now settle it among themselves. The refusal of the Grand Trunk to accept its percentage, the attitude of the West Shore, the failure of one or two of the trunk lines to keep their agreements, and the suicidal action of the smaller lines in a foolish but futile struggle to get business, have been the causes that have led to the total disruption of the pool, which will be followed by an indiscriminate scramble for business and consciousness war in both passenger and freight business, the problem now at hand.

The result of Mr. Fink's final action will be discouraging to every reputable railway man who realizes that if Fink cannot master the problem now at hand, it is impossible to learn who will be the back.

Blaine's Tour.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24.—At an early hour this morning the carriage of Mr. Zerk, of Philadelphia, was driven to the entrance of the hotel where he was to stay.

Blaine did not arise until nearly 10. He looked fatigued, and took breakfast with his son and Mr. Elkins in his own room. About half-past 10 Senator Don Cameron, with griseous, came into the hotel and was shown a room, and after Blaine finished his breakfast the Senator called on him.

At 12:30 Blaine entered an open carriage with Geo. H. Baker and Dr. Wolt of Zurich. His appearance at the doorway was the signal for a outburst of applause from the crowd. Blaine gracefully lifted his hat.

As he was driven rapidly out of the street he was recognized all along the line, and the applause continued until he had left the crowded city and entered the park.

It has a well-defined nucleus, and a faint short tail directed away from the sun. The comet discovered by Mr. Barnard July 16, was also viewed last night. ## WORK OF THE REVOLVER

A Negro Shot Down While Pursuing With a Club.

An Innocent Miner Accidentally Gets in the Way of a "Wild" Bullet—George Lewis Shot Down While Fighting for His Life.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 24.—A tragedy resulting in the death of Knott Bowie, a negro, has occurred at Camden, Ark., as known at a political negro, and was killed by John C. Ritchie, who was a Republican candidate for Sheriff at the recent election. The particulars, as far as they are known, are about as follows: Ritchie and several friends were engaged in front of Morgan's drug store, when Bowie walked up to the party. Ritchie requested him to move on, as his conversation was private. He hesitated, when Ritchie touched him on the neck with his right walking stick. The negro then started away, but changed his mind and came at Ritchie with a club elevated in the air. Ritchie retreated, and as his opponent advanced, a revolver, "trew a revolver and fired. The ball entered Bowie's head above the left eye and went crashing through his brain, killing him instantly.

The Innocent Passenger.

BOULDER, Colo., Sept. 24.—John Joy, a miner, was killed by John Paul at Gold Hill, a Boulder County mining camp, on Saturday night. Paul was in Ed. Hoy's saloon wrestling with some of the boys when John Hersinger came in, and caught Paul by the shirt collar and commenced to threaten him. Paul said he did not want to fight, but as the fellow would not let him go, he was forced to fight. Paul was armed with a pair of metal knuckles, cutting his face badly. Paul then went behind the bar to wash the blood off his face, and a revolver in the drawer, he picked it up. Hersinger said: "Pull your gun if you want to," pulling him some ugly names, and ran out the door, pulling it to after him. Paul fired before the door was fairly closed, the ball passing through the door and over Hersinger's head. Hersinger ran around the corner of the building out of sight and Paul followed to the door and fired without being able to see who might be in the way, it being very dark. The ball struck Joy, who happened to be passing in the left arm and passed into his body cutting the aorta. Joy expired almost instantly. He leaves a wife and one child. In the East, Paul was arraigned before Justice Finley, of Gold Hill, who committed him to jail.

Shot Through the Heart.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 24.—Last night about 9 o'clock a most outrageous murder was committed in front of the Court House in this city, while the street was densely crowded with pedestrians. The particulars are as follows: George Lewis, aged twenty-five years, and Paul, seeing a revolver in two, went into a saloon in the early part of the evening, and during a friendly conversation became involved in a dispute. Both had been drinking and were partly intoxicated. Gordon missed his watch and charged Lewis with stealing it. He seized the clock, but Gordon would not pay any attention to that, and they were calling each other hard names, when the proprietor of the place ordered them to be quiet or leave the place, when Lewis got up and ran out of the saloon, Gordon pursuing. When passing the Court House Gordon put out a Smith & Wesson revolver, took a direct aim at Lewis, fired, and the latter dropped on the pavement, dying instantly, the ball having penetrated the heart. An ambulance was secured and the body conveyed to the deceased's home, which is on the outskirts of the city. The minute the report of the pistol was heard great excitement prevailed, and the policeman and great difficulty in getting to the body and placing it in the ambulance. It is rumored that no other person was injured, as the street was densely crowded at the time. Gordon did not attempt to conceal himself, but delivered him self up to the police authorities and admitted that he did the shooting. He was immediately taken to jail and placed in an iron cell. The coroner held an inquest on the body of Lewis, and the jury rendered a verdict that Lewis came to his death by being shot by Gordon. Both men are married. Lewis leaves a wife and one child and Gordon has a wife and two children. When the body of the victim was taken to his home his wife was overcome with grief, and thrown into convulsions, and it was with the utmost difficulty that she could be consoled.

A SINGLE FACT

Is Worth a Ship-Load of Argument.

CARTERSVILLE, GA. This will certify that two members of my immediate family, after having suffered for many years from menstrual irregularity, and having been treated without benefit by various medical doctors, were at length completely cured by one bottle of Dr. J. Bradfield's Female Regulator. Its effect on such cases is wonderful, and well may the remedy be called "Woman's Best Friend."

Yours respectfully,

JAMES W. STRANGE.

ENTIRE AND ABSOLUTE SUCCESS.

Mrs. John C. Whitner, of Atlanta, well and favorably known all over the United States as a General Insurance Agent, says:

"I used this remedy before the war on a large plantation in a great number of cases, always with absolute success."

Dr. J. Davis, of Milltown, Ala., writes: "I have used Bradfield's Regulator extensively in my practice with entire success. It is not a specific, it is in my opinion, the best known remedy for the diseases for which it is recommended."

A lady of Bonham, Texas, writes: "I have been using your Female Regulator for several weeks and with great benefit. My case is of long standing, and has baffled many physicians. I have tried every medicine I could hear of, but the Regulator is the only one that has ever relieved my distressing sufferings."

—NOVADILLA, ALA.

Dr. J. Bradfield's Female Regulator has been thoroughly tested by me in a great variety of cases, and I am fully convinced that it is unrivaled for the diseases for which it claims to cure. J. C. HICKS, M. D.
